Essay

“Environmental Conversation: Playing our part, making a difference”

Nowadays main problems are associated with critical conditions of our environment. These problems are originated from climate change, air and water pollution, global warming.

Personally, I have previously done on a daily basis useful actions to protect our environment and can continue to do simple, but important ones, such as: I can plant a tree, do not litter and sometimes remove rubbish in my street.

There is no doubt that the actions of one person are important: any ideas or activities affect our future. A well-known proverb says: “Any a little makes a mickle”, so if each person stops littering or using combustion-engined vehicle, the world will be completely different – self renewing, free from pollution!
