

Environmental Conservation:

Playing our part, making a difference

One of the most important problems of our modern world are environment problems. In order to save our planet and to have a possibility to live on the Earth forever, we have to protect the environment.

Some of the main problems of the Earth are global warming, climate change, air and water pollution, water shortage, animal habitat loss and deforestation. Everyone should understand that the problems mentioned above can be solved only if everyone helps.

All of those problems worry me, but in my opinion, the worst problem is water pollution. This one also leads to water shortage, because people and animals can't drink polluted water, and to decrease of fish population whose death can be caused by chemicals or garbage in water.

However, the water pollution can be stopped by making a law that makes dropping the garbage into seas, rivers and oceans forbidden. The tankers that transport oil should be secure in order to decrease the chances of accidents with them. Also, the governments should make a law to forbid pouring the chemicals into water.

To sum up, we can save our planet and keep it in a good condition, but we need every person to help protecting the environment. The more we do for the nature now, the longer humanity will be able to live on our planet.

By Panchenko Vlada